The LT4 was a special high-performance version of the new-generation LT1. With the addition of a slightly more aggressive camshaft profile, 1.6:1 roller aluminum rocker arms, high-flow cylinder heads, and an intake manifold (painted red) port matched to the raised port LT4 cylinder heads, it was rated at 330 horsepower and 340 lb-ft. It was introduced in the 1996 model year, for the last year of the C4 Corvette, and came standard on all manual transmission C4 Corvettes.
